GEORGE LAURI'S DEATH.

Sydney, January 11.

The circumstances in connection with the death of George John Lowe (George Lauri), who was found with his throat cut at Bayview on Tuesday last, were investigated by the coroner this afternoon. Marietta Constance Lowe, widow of the deceased, said on January 5 her husband was sitting on the verandah of the boarding house, and the witness was inside making a bed. The witness heard the deceased call, 'Marie, come here quick. Look, look.' The witness replied, 'All right, dear, I'll be out in a minute.' He repeated, 'Come quick and look at it.' She went out and saw the deceased leaning over, and blood was flowing from a wound. She thought at first that the blood was only from his nose, but when he turned she saw the razor. The witness called, and Madame Rainaud came out. The deceased then ran into the room and closed the door and called out, 'Keep them away. Don't let them come in. He then opened the door and fell outwards into her arms saying, 'Forgive me. I could bear this life no longer.' The witness asked him, 'Why did you do it?' He replied, 'Forgive me. I thought you might not love me.' The deceased asked them to lay him down, saying, 'Marie, I have always loved you.' The witness said her husband had suffered from loss of memory since their visit to Colombo in June. He had been suffering from hallucinations for some time, and had an idea that men were always following him about to club him. On one occasion he came in and said that men were waiting for him at the fence. The deceased a good many times had expressed his intention of taking his own life. When his memory, returned after lapses of this kind he would say, 'This cannot go on any longer. I am sure I am going mad. Sooner than this I would cut my throat.' He had also said to her, 'Why don't you give me poison?' The witness did not think her husband was bad enough to be shut up. He was 48 years of age, and was an actor by profession. Originally he was an architect. The Coroner found that the deceased had died from hemorrhage, caused by a wound in the throat, Self-inflicted, whilst the deceased was of unsound mind. GEORGE LAURI'S DEATH. (1909, January 16). Chronicle (Adelaide, SA : 1895 - 1954), p. 41. Retrieved from <http://nla.gov.au/nla.news-article88290698>
